“ So many memories of weekend card games at Flola and Paul's house during my adolescence days. Paul was always the positive comical spark to a bad moment. Whistle britches, whipper snapper, although I don't remember all of his comical names for children, I'll always remember that soft spoken voice that caused one to always smile. My last visit with Paul was about 6 years ago while replacing a water heater at my folks house. Mom called Paul to let him know I was there. I was so flattered that he would drive over just to visit with me, a seemingly child to him some 41 years his junior. May God Bless Paula and Randy and family.
