“ Sorry to hear about Sue. I worked with her at Crompton Mills. We worked on the Quillers together. For those that don't know what a Quiller was. A machine that would run thread onto a Bobbin and then sent to the weaving room. We had some good times laughing. I remember pushing her into the Break area on a Dollie. She couldn't get off because I wouldn't stop. We laughed so much about that. She was a kind and wonderful person.

“ Miss Sue,
We will certainly miss you! but I know you're very excited to start your Eternal Adventure with Jesus.
Thank you for opening your heart, your home, and your kitchen to us growing up here on Wolverton Mountain. I'm sorry for getting watermelon juice on your porch but you stopped me before I got in the house, LOL! Those watermelon fights were a precious part of my childhood.
Go run, and feast, and dance with our Savior, we will see you soon.
