“ We lived across the street from each other for a few years. We helped to keep an eye out on her. When her alarm would go off we would try to check on her to see if she was okay. People knew she was alone. We would have a family reunion and was on or around her birthday and on holidays we would make her a plate and take over and sing carols. We did that for her, Ms. Cook and the Bryant's. We weren't able to do the past two years BC we were short on food for the holidays. We were happy to be together. Grant would help her clear the weeds in her flower bed and water her plants. I wanted to see her last week, but we live at the end of Wray street and I didn't think I could walk that far since I'm disabled now. I didn't want to pass out with NES. I'm gonna miss talking to her. Love ? you Ms. Barbara. God has just received another sweet angel.
