“ Dear Lance and Debbie,

While I never had the opportunity to be Colby's nurse, I did get to know him and you all just a little bit. I won't forget the afternoon that I helped him into your lap, Debbie. He was a sweet, sweet baby. I'm honored to have met him. You're in my thoughts and prayers. Kris, RN

“ To Colby's family:

Please know that we have been praying for your family, will be praying for you today, will continue to pray for you in the weeks to come.

I don't think it's meant for us to understand why these things happen, why any of our babies had to be "special" coming into this world, but the only comfort we have is that our children are in God's hands. Each day is a gift, and to be treasured. Colby knew he was loved, and we watched day after day as Debra and other family members were there for Colby, just as all the rest of our families are for our babies.

Colby is resting now in God's arms. Several of our babies, Trinity and Mallory, continue to struggle in rooms 1 and 2 in CVICU, side by side.

They are in God's hands as well, and we know not what their futures will be, but believe they are in God's hands.

God be with all of you, and we will be remembering you today and in the days to come.
