“ I will miss her stories of times gone by. Stories about my mama, my daddy, her and her children... She had a heart bigger than outside and a smile that never fell from her beautiful face. I loved her so very much. She was and will always be my "Nother Mother"

“ I remember going over to her house all the time. She would always try to feed me candy or cookies. I remember her exact words one day. She said "Ivee, come on in! There's some cookies in the jar, help yourself." i used to love it when she would say that. The night before she passed, my grandma had brought her some potato soup. She said that soup made her feel better than she had felt in years. She believed that my grandma had spiked it. But my grandma said that is how people get before they leave us. She said that they start thinking better, and feeling better, so she knew Granny was about to go. Granny had a dog, his name was Mr Pickles. One day Mr. Pickles went outside, and laid down in the garden spot and took his last breath. Granny called crying, but she said that was how she wanted to go. She didn't want to suffer, or have any pain, she just wanted to ly down and die. and that is what happened.
