“ *After we were grown, Lavonne and I didn't see each other that often. But, from the time I was 4 1/2 and she was almost 5, we were like sisters. She and her siblings became mine and Jimmy's step cousins at that time. They were our playmates through the years. I remember sitting in the rumble seat of Uncle Opie's jalopies singing Bringing in the Sheaves, learning to whistle, and learning to blow bubble gum. After church on Sundays we would hassle over whose turn it was to ask Aunt Reva Dale or Aunt Hettie Mae if we could wear their earrings and high heels. Of course, we got a purse, too. And down the dirt road we would go. We also ended up washing dishes after those Sunday dinners. Then we got to get a little churn from off the top of the cabinet and churn soapy water. As teenagers we would walk or ride bikes in the dark to and from our houses. As youngsters, we sat together on tiny folding wood chairs in our tiny Sunday School room. I loved spending the nights at her house, which I did often. After all, Aunt Addie Mae made wonderful chocolate gravy for breakfast. She, Joe, Larry Dale, Gary Lynn, and Terry Wayne were not only cousins, but very close and dear childhood friends. I can't bear to think of our family not having her with us. Losing Lavonne is something I didn't expect for many more years to come. My love and sympathy to all of you, especially Gary, Timmy, Steve and families.*
